PAGEANT PRESENTED AT PLAYSTEAD

Children Take Part in "Dream of Fairyland"—Many Qualify in Safety Contest—Entertainment Tonight to Raise Funds for Apparatus

The Playstead made a pretty and convenient setting for the pageant, "A Dream of Fairyland" given by the children of the summer playground under the direction of Miss Margaret Davis and James Bissett on last Friday evening.

Three hundred spectators gathered on the bleachers to witness the pageant, given on the greenward below, the childish voices vying with the honk of automobile horns, the chugging of motors and the shouts of baseball fans gathered to witness the struggle between the McDonalds and the Legions.

Rose Doyle was the Child who after a visit from the Sandman, dramatically portrayed by Edith Saunders, is carried away to Fairyland where she is granted five wishes. In accordance with her wishes there danced a dozen gay candy bags, a gypsy story-teller, playmates for games and singers, and acrobats for her entertainment. The Fairy Attendants prouetted in their diaphanous costumes and the acrobats, directed by Mr. Bissett, were applauded for their agility. The Child was awakened by Sunbeams, and the pageant closed with the entire cast grouped around the American flag carried by Bradford Fraize while taps was sounded by James Platt and George Burridge.

The cast of characters was as follows:

ABOARD THE ZEPPELIN

Joachim Rickard Tells of Trans-Atlantic Voyage—Is Passenger on Eastward Round-the-World Trip

How Joachim Rickard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Rickard of Andover and one of the passengers on the Graf Zeppelin, nearly missed making the trans-oceanic voyage in the big dirigible was interestingly told in an interview with him in Tuesday's Boston Post.

He was the last to board the Zeppelin at Friedrichshafen, Germany, but his tardy arrival was the result of delay in transit from Madrid, Spain, and not because of a last-minute decision not to make the trip. Young Mr. Rickard flew by specially chartered airplane from Madrid, where he is the only American practicing attorney, to Friedrichshafen and owing to storms encountered he was several hours late in arrival. Anna May Wong, the Chinese moving picture actress from Hollywood, had promised the Andover man's place if he should fail to arrive in time for the departure. Up to almost the last minute she was hopeful of making the trip and was almost about to board when she saw the tall figure of Mr. Rickard arriving. She broke down and cried in disappointment.

I was sorry to disappoint the lady, declared Mr. Rickard, but I don't really think that Zeppelin flying is just the thing for moving picture actresses or any beautiful woman who wants to look her best. The quarters are very comfortable, but they are not very commodious for making an elaborate toilette.

And, I certainly wouldn't recommend it for a honeymoon trip. Unfortunately, at present, Zeppelin travelling does not afford much privacy. Various people asked me if I was lonesome, but I must confess that I was lonesome, and I were in too close proximity to be lonesome.

Judging from Mr. Rickard's remarks, time hung rather heavy on the hands of the passengers while crossing the ocean. Smoking is banned and books are the best relaxation, but he possessed one of the only three books aboard. Some of the passengers engaged their time in the playing of cards, "hearts" being the most popular game, and so uneventful was the passage that when a man lost his cap through an open window, a real ripple of excitement resulted. Mr. Rickard thereupon whirled one of his caps out into space to keep the excitement humming.

President Hoover was one of the many persons who sent messages of congratulation to Mrs. Elizabeth Gray Kimball who observed her 100th birthday on Wednesday at the home of her grandson Arthur J. Jenkins of Ballardvale road.

For the last two weeks Mrs. Kimball has not been enjoying her usual good health and the anniversary was observed very quietly. She received more than a hundred cards and many bouquets. Many members of her family called during the day to express their good wishes including children, grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Despite her hundred years, Mrs. Kimball has led an active life until recently. Her eyes were remarkably good and she could read for hours at a time without tiring. She delighted in assisting with the housework, such as washing dishes and making her own bed.

The mother of eight children, she had her share of work to do in bringing up her large family. Her long life she attributes to good luck only.

Mrs. Kimball was born in Portland, Me. For thirty years she lived in Danvers and when her husband, Forrest Kimball, passed away, she went to Boxford to live with her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Osgood. For the past four years she has made her home at the Jenkins residence where four generations of the family reside.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Public Works, Superintendent Charles T. Gilliard reported on the work of his department for the month of July. Among the items of general interest were the following:

Highway Department
A section of Chestnut street near Upland road which was in an unsatisfactory condition was covered with gravel and otherwise repaired. Two rough sections of road, one on Andover street Ballardvale from the Bradley school to the bridge and another on Elm street from Whittier street to Washington avenue have been treated with Tervia Retread. After the application of Retread and sand the road was dragged until its surface was smooth and a light dragging was given the following day. A section of River street and Bancroft road have also been treated with Tervia Retread. The results obtained from this process have been gratifying.

The construction of Poor street was completed July 11 and involved 3390 square yards of road, the laying of 700 feet of curbing, drain pipe and the installation of three catch basins. This road has added much to the improved appearance of that section of Shawshin Village.

The construction of Washington avenue was started on July 15 and the first stone was applied July 23. The drainage system on this street was quite extensive and was completed July 18. This road is now open to traffic.

Six hundred feet of curbing has been laid

Fire Damages House in West Andover
At 3:25 p.m., Wednesday afternoon Box 21 was sounded for a fire at the home of Daniel Harrington on Osgood Road. The blaze was discovered by members of the family, who were attempting to check the blaze when the Ballardvale fire department arrived on the scene.

The fire started in the second story of the house, between the partitions and worked its way out though the clapboards and up into the roof.

The Andover fire department also responded.

Auto Collision at High and Harding Streets
Two machines collided at the corner of High and Harding streets at 6 o'clock last Friday evening. No one was hurt and the damage was slight. An auto operated by William Waterhouse of 510 Lowell street, Wrentham was going north on High street and, turned down Harding street, when it crashed with a machine owned by Isaac Livingston of 3 Temple place and operated by George Livingston of the same address. The Livingston car was headed south on High street. Both reported to the police that they were going about 25 miles per hour.

THE DOE WITH ONE EYE
A doe that had but one eye used to graze near the lake, and that she might be the more secure from attack, kept her eye toward the land against the approach of the hunters, and her blind side toward the water, whence she feared no danger. But some hunters rowing by in a boat and seeing her, aimed at her from the water and shot her. When dying she said: "Ill-fated creature that I am! I was safe on the landside, whence I expected to be attacked, but find an enemy in the lake to which I most looked for protection."

Moral: Our troubles often come from the quarter we least expect them.

Idea, Foundation of Law, Traced to Democritus

In 1720 Francis Hutcheson, in his "Inquiry into the Original of our Ideas of Beauty and Virtue," wrote: "That action is best which procures the greatest happiness for the greatest numbers; and that worst, which, in like manner, occasions misery." This is the earliest known use of the phrase "the greatest happiness of the greatest numbers." It was used by Cesare Beccaria in his "Treatise on Crimes and Punishments," first published in 1764. Later Jeremy Bentham, the English political philosopher, wrote: "The greatest happiness of the greatest number is the foundation of morals and legislation." The general idea conveyed by the phrase, however, is found in the writings of some of the ancients, notably Democritus—Pathfinder Magazine.

THEATRES

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

Metropolitan patrons will be pleased to learn that "The Mysterious Doctor Fu Manchu" will at last be brought to the Metropolitan screen Thursday, August 8. This picture was previously scheduled, but is now definitely set for exhibition. Book lovers are familiar with Sax Rohmer's famous stories in which "The Mysterious Doctor Fu Manchu" is the principal character. This weird character is played by the capable Warner Oland, who makes Fu Manchu a living personality.

Paramount has made an unusually fine all-talking picture of this uncanny, hypnotic, menacing, mystery story, which has woven into it a heart-grIPPING theme. Excitement, action, and suspense, abound from beginning to end. It is one of the outstanding pictures of the season.

In addition to Warner Oland, there are Jean Arthur, Neil Hamilton, William Austin, and O. P. Heggie.

Gene Rodemich continues to delight his old and new friends in an exquisitely beautiful Public stage gem called "The Velvet Revue," whose sparkling cast includes Cliff Nazarro, a versatile monologist, and singer; John Quinlan, a popular Irish tenor; Walter Walters; Alexander & Swanson, top-notch comedians; Kathleen Karr, a beautiful comedienne; and the Mary Reeder dancing beauties.

Guy Harrison and the Grand Orchestra have selected as the feature Overture, "The Irish Rhapsody" which embodies the most stirring and favorite melodies inspired by the land of the shamrock.

Arthur Martel will present a novelty organ solo, and there will be a special Paramount Sound News Weekly, showing in sound all local, national, and international events of interest and importance.

There will be additional short features included in this generous program, one of the most delightful, and varied shows yet presented at the Metropolitan.

Beginning Thursday, August 15, the feature all-talking Paramount picture, taken from the stage play, "The Constant Wife," will be shown under the title of "Charming Sinners," featuring the popular favorites, Ruth Chatterton, Clive Brook, and the sterling artist, William Powell.

Gene Rodemich will continue as Master of Ceremonies in a brand new Public stage presentation featuring the matchless Play-boy Band.

Simple Questions That Often Prove Pitfalls

Why is winter colder than summer? How deep does a scuttled ship sink, and why does air in a closed room get bad?

A recent examination of presumably well-informed people revealed that many a man of more than average education can be caught in pitfalls of ignorance.

Most people were caught over the first question. More than four-fifths said that winter is colder than summer because the sun is then farther away. This, of course, is wrong, the sun being nearer in winter. The real reason lies in the earth's changing slant, which brings the sun directly overhead in summer and lower in the sky in winter.

Surprisingly common, too, was the idea that sunken ships do not go to the bottom, but float at some midway level. Heavy objects sink because they are denser than water. A ship sinks to the bottom because water's density remains virtually unchanged despite the enormous pressures encountered at great depths.

Air in a closed room gets bad because of the gradual exhaustion of the oxygen contained in the air, and not, as many people suppose, because of carbon dioxide gas exhaled by its occupants.

Driving and Around Andover—Not Meant as a Baedeker

To spend one's vacation there are numerous means. You can order a private yacht and tour the coasts, east and west, north or south. You can buy a Packard or a Ford and bump up and down mountains to the amusement of the natives and the detriment of the time-renowned view. You can charter a camp on one of the newspaper advertised lakes and sweat mosquitoes for the better part of a month until there is naught left of your physique for the insects to nibble and thither, far and wide, or if none of these various modes of entertainment intrigue you, you can stay at home. All but the last have this quality entailed in their merits, you not only spend your vacation, but also much of your hard-earned money, which you had stored away in the stocking against some rainy day or at least as a temporary shelter during a drizzle, and after all, especially, if you are fond of ice cream sodas or socially amiable games of bridge, this is, you will have to admit, a bit disadvantageous. Being of a frugal and thrifty nature due to some vulgar strain in my forebears, no doubt, my theme deals with the last, but by no means least of the assembled category.

One of my favorite evening entertainments during this summer has been to drive around "Big Pond" in North Andover at night just as the sun is going down. We usually drive up Summer street to the Downing place, down Highland road to the Salem turnpike, and across, down Chestnut Street to the Old North Andover Unitarian Church, then either by the macadam road towards West Boxford or over the dirt road directly beside the church. The latter is not so good a road as the former but the scenery is exquisite. The road is blessedly free from roadside stands and advertisements for Camels, Socony, or what have you. The part of Chestnut street as you leave the Salem road would be very deceptive to those who know the trails around Crawford Notch in the White Mountains. The trees hang close to the sides of the road and seem thick enough, as you glance into them, to be hiding the sloping sides of mountains and you feel no great surprise when a rabbit hops out across in front of your car. At the first turn you see on your left a huge white house set back among shade trees on a well groomed lawn surrounded by a white paling fence. As you look over to the side of this house you seem to be very high up, from the road there is no sign of other houses, only the vivid colored clouds of the sunset and as you go farther down the hill towards North Andover you get a panoramic picture of the hills in South New Hampshire and those crossing near Wachusett in Northern Massachusetts. Just below you are the smoke stacks of Lawrence.

If I were Vachel Lindsey or Carl Sandburg I might dwell at length on their striking awkwardness but as I am not, I won't; to me they are most soulful and sturdy. I prefer the view beyond. On the right is a large beige house, not that houses are usually colored that but any ordinary color fails to describe the texture of this abode. In front of it is a silvery ball on a pedestal looking for all the world like an athletic trophy and I have wondered many times in passing if it says "Bingville vs. Umpston" and a score and date on it. I have never investigated but some dark night I shall.

On the left you will notice a house and barn with great piles of wood about them and directly as you pass the yard the spires of the church gleam up against a background of green trees for all the world like the spires of old English churches along the Thames. You pass on your right the Farnham stable, set beyond a long rolling saffron field. This house always held my attention from my earliest Andover and North Andover memories as perhaps the castle in which all the golden heroines of Fairyland days had their dwelling, their evil stepmothers and their love affairs with neighboring princes. A shiny silver ball on a pedestal looking for all the world like an athletic trophy and I have wondered many times in passing if it says "Bingville vs. Umpston" and a score and date on it. I have never investigated but some dark night I shall.

On the left you will notice a house and barn with great piles of wood about them and directly as you pass the yard the spires of the church gleam up against a background of green trees for all the world like the spires of old English churches along the Thames. You pass on your right the Farnham stable, set beyond a long rolling saffron field. This house always held my attention from my earliest Andover and North Andover memories as perhaps the castle in which all the golden heroines of Fairyland days had their dwelling, their evil stepmothers and their love affairs with neighboring princes. That's the margin by which 20th Century Bread outsells all others in this section. People overwhelmingly prefer the quality, flavor and freshness of 20th Century.

You and the thousands of others who know there IS a difference in bread have made 20th Century the most popular hereabouts—a favorite, 3 to 1. Don't take something "just as good." There's no such article. INSIST upon

20th CENTURY BREAD

Five Simple Rules for

Keeping Good Health

Practical inference from the views of an eminent physician are so simple that they are almost trite, and yet they are fundamental. If you want to keep out of the repair shop and make your own body "tick" vigorously and regularly, don't rely on drugs, but co-operate with nature in five ways:

- 1—Drink an abundance of water to keep your cells in condition.
 - 2—Sleep at least eight hours out of each 24 to maintain your batteries.
 - 3—Regulate your diet carefully so your body will be adequately nourished, and don't "dig your grave with your teeth" by overeating.
 - 4—Get plenty of fresh air, especially when you are sleeping.
 - 5—Exercise regularly to rebuild worn tissues, increase blood circulation and develop new cells.
- If these five simple rules were honestly and thoroughly observed for several generations as vigorously as the Jews have obeyed the laws of hygiene handed down by Moses, druggists and doctors would eventually be obliged to seek other occupations, and the world would be populated by a very much superior race of human beings.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Proof of Good Heart

Courtesy is merely a name for good fellowship and helpfulness toward the other fellow. It is the manifestation of the spirit of unselfishness. It shows that you want to see others beside yourself get along in this world.—Grit.

Cold Not Only Thing

Hoarded by the Miser

No one loves a miser. He does not consider money as a medium of exchange, as a counter in a game, but as an end in itself. He delights to hoard it, hold it, gloat over it, but never does he delight to spend. So have I observed men to hoard their virtues, count them, finger them, exult over them, yet none escape to serve a needy world. By this it does appear men may be misers in other things than gold.

One of the most subtle of all temptations is the tendency to become miserly and covetous of some prized possession. It may be physical strength. It may be beauty. It may be intellectual power or accomplishment. We are so apt to make the possession of these things an end in itself and to forget the more important fact that they have been given to us for a purpose.—Exchange.

Known by Various Names

There are four military terms in use for the flag—flag, color, standard and ensign. Flag is a general term. A color is a flag carried by unmounted units. A standard is a flag carried by mounted or motorized units. An ensign is a flag flown on ships and small boats.

Juvenile Love at Last

A Los Angeles couple eloped to Santa Anna with the intention of getting married, but failed of the desired object owing to the fact that both were minors. Later, the young man was sued by the irate father of the girl.

When the case came up, the attorney for the defense asked that the action be dismissed on the ground that no harm had been done, that if any offense had been committed both parties were equally at fault and that when all was said and done, it was just a case of puppy love. "What do you call puppy love?" asked the court. "Well," replied the attorney, "it's the kind that's too young to have to get a license for."—Los Angeles Times.

Ralph Waldo Emerson

Child of Merry Month

The month of May brought this country some men who were to become immortal. It brought to a house in Summer street, Boston, from whose windows could be heard the tinkling of cowbells and could be seen stately rows of elm trees and Lombardy poplars, a baby boy, the fourth child of the minister of the First church. This child grew up "in an atmosphere of letters, quite apart by himself." He was a spiritual looking boy in blue nankeen, who found more favor with his elders than with those of his own age. He was serious, but he was not solemn.

Like his father, he became a minister, but resigned his pulpit after a few years, because he felt cramped in spirit by the orthodoxy of the day. He went to live in Concord and was called a sage. A sage he still is, and there are very few people the world over who have not read some of Ralph Waldo Emerson's teachings.

How little he would have sympathized with the "Puritan of Puritans" who struck down the Maypole in 1629! For this is what he says of beauty: "All privilege is that of beauty."

The question of beauty takes us out of surfaces of thinking of the foundations of things. . . . Beauty is the quality which makes us endure." And he quotes copiously from the Greeks to illustrate. From the pagan Greeks! What a long road he had traveled, compared with the limited path in which Governor Endicott solemnly took his way!—Ex change.

Jungle Monarchs Lose

Ferocity in Daylight

Many of the jungle animals bearing reputations for ferocity are exceeding timid during the daytime. A real bout of daylight in this country is authority for this statement and he says that he has repeatedly approached lions or tigers at a distance of 50 yards and instead of attacking him they have slunk away. At night, however, the situation is quite different. These animals seem to become emboldened by the dark. Elephants rarely attack a man unless provoked. A native forester riding over one of the paths through a jungle accidentally collided with a cub elephant, whereupon the enraged mother seized the forester and literally tore him to pieces. Ordinarily the elephants will flee at the approach of a human or even if they detect the odor of a human. "The elephant's eye is poor, but his sense of smell is marvelously keen."

Flags of the Confederacy

There were four Confederate flags. The first was selected by a committee of six persons of the Confederate congress. This flag did not meet with the approval of the people, as it too closely resembled the Union emblem. The second flag was designed by Edward C. Hancock in October, 1861. But as this was a battle flag it was not satisfactory, as the people wished a national emblem in addition to one for battle. On May 1, 1863, the Confederate congress selected the third flag. This also was disapproved for two reasons: The first, because it had two much white and resembled the flag of truce; and second, because it was too similar to the English white ensign. Finally on May 4, 1864, the national Confederate flag was approved.

Names of Cloud Formations

The idea of giving names to various kinds of cloud formation was first attempted in the early part of the Nineteenth century by a man named Lamarck, but his terms were not well chosen. A simpler form was devised about 1803 by Luke Howard which seemed to answer the purpose and was generally accepted. Howard classified clouds according to their appearance, recognizing three primary types—cirrus, cumulus and stratus—and four derivative, or compound forms—cirro-cumulus, cirro-stratus, cumulo-stratus and cumulo-cirro-stratus, or nimbus. Thus, he defined seven varieties.

Bad News

Jenkins married, and in due course his wife presented him with a son. His friends flocked round to tender their congratulations and, incidentally, smoke Bill's cigars.

Jones was on his way to the house when he met Browning returning. "Where are you going?" asked the latter.

"Oh, I'm just going round to see Bill and wish him luck with that youngster of his."

"Then you're too late." "What?" Surely it hasn't died?"

"No, the youngster's all right, but the cigar box is empty."—Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph.

Camels in Australia

Many camels are used in Australia as beasts of burden. For instance, from Wyndham in northwestern Australia the cattle stations are served by camel trains which carry supplies for hundreds of miles into the interior. "The camels are driven by Afghans," says the National Geographic society. "Camel teams are familiar sights in the streets of the little township, hauling in the great wagonloads of firewood from the outlying district. The first camels were brought to Australia for the use of the early explorers. Later a fine type of dromedary was imported for breeding purposes."

Unerring Instinct Is

Nature's Gift to Seal

Seals are possessed of most marvelous instincts, says Gas Logic. They know, for instance, exactly where to bore the ice to make their bobbing holes and never waste time or effort on ice too thick to be penetrated. They have some mysterious way also of knowing the width of a field of ice that must either be swum under or passed around.

A mother seal will leave her pup on an ice floe, slide off into the water, travel for a great distance and be gone for hours fishing. Meantime the ice floe, carried by winds and currents, drifts far also. Yet when "quitting time" comes the mother unerringly returns to the right floe, comes up through her own bobbing hole and at once finds her waiting child. Seals normally travel through the water at about 20 miles an hour, but on occasion will "bolt" for a short time at a rate of about 100 miles an hour. They cannot remain submerged without drowning for more than about 30 minutes.

A mother seal among a swarm of seal "pups" is said to be a very curious sight. Many of the "pups" solicit her maternal attention, but she angrily repels them all, finds her own baby and nurses no other. The seal youngsters all look precisely alike to man, but her nose knows!

Belated Honors Paid

First British Aeronaut

In honor of James Sadler, the first British aeronaut, a memorial tablet has been erected at Oxford.

On October 4, 1874, he "did astonish the people by ascending into the atmosphere with firmness and intrepidity." His balloon was 170 feet in circumference, and carried a small brazier, suspended under the envelope, in order to maintain heated air to give the power of ascension. It shot up to a height of 3,000 feet, and was blown northwest.

Unfortunately, Sadler dropped the fork used to handle the fuel, and it said he avoided coming down in a wood by using care. Eventually, after half an hour's flight, he had traveled about six miles. In his second flight he used hydrogen, and in three minutes was lost to sight in the clouds. Twenty minutes later he came down near Aylesbury, 14 miles away.

For 25 years Sadler worked as a chemist, engineer, and inventor, but when fifty-seven he returned to ballooning. In 1814 he ascended from Burlington house, Piccadilly, before a huge crowd. Subsequently, however, he failed in an attempt to cross from Ireland to England.

Pipe to Cure Pain

The shaman or doctor of the Wyot Indians wore a pair of feather dust-wood and on each side of the head, and carried a bundle of condor feathers, an elkhide belt and a pipe.

Among the Wyot, unlike the modern custom, doctors were chiefly women. Some of them diagnosed the ills of their tribespeople by dancing or singing, others sucked out the pain through their magic pipes. The condor feathers were pushed down the throat, much as a sword swallower would handle a knife. A very complete shaman's outfit which has passed from one member of the tribe to another for several generations, has been recently acquired by the Museum of Anthropology of the University of California.

Small Farms in India

"India is essentially a country of small holdings," says Sir Verney Lovett, author of "India." "In many parts of the country the land is held mainly by families of peasant proprietors. In other parts the bulk of the land is owned by large properties, but even in such cases the tenant in chief has generally been protected by a series of rent acts which not only insure him fixity of tenure during his lifetime but often grant the right of descent of the tenure to his heirs on his death. The disruptive tendencies of the Hindu and Mohammedan laws have profoundly affected agricultural economy through encouraging the minute subdivision of land." Fragmentation is the rule.

Ireland's Famous Hill

Tara is the name of a hill in County Meath, Ireland. It was here that the triennial convention of the Irish kings was established by Ollam Fodah, about 900 B. C. According to tradition the palace of Tara was 900 feet square, containing 150 apartments and 150 dormitories. The early kings of Ireland were said to be crowned here and tradition further states that Tara at the time of the advent of St. Patrick to Ireland was the principal seat of Druidism in Ireland. It is said to have been abandoned through the curse of St. Rudan, 450, on account of its idolatry.

Amber and Meerschaum

Amber can be made to burn when heated to a high temperature in the air. It is a fossil resin from trees of the pine family and is dug up from the shores of the Baltic sea and the North sea and a few other places. It is a compound of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. Meerschaum is a compound of magnesium, silicon and oxygen and resembles a white clay. It is found chiefly in Asia Minor, where it occurs in masses of clay. Of course, the only connection between the two substances is the fact that they are both used in making pipes.

Dogfish Too Playful

A young Florentine who had rowed his palatine (a raft boat used on the Tuscan coast by bathers) about half a mile out to sea, near Viareggio, says the Rome correspondent of the London Sunday Observer, caught sight of a huge fish coming toward him, which he mistook for a dolphin and light heartedly proceeded to kill with his oar.

The animal turned out to be a "meriglio," a kind of dogfish, some 20 to 25 feet long. It drove its teeth with such force into the end of the palatine that it could only free itself by leaving several of its teeth behind. During this struggle the boat was overturned, but the bather was a good swimmer and managed to gain possession of it, and had still enough strength to make vigorous signs of distress to neighboring boats, which came to his rescue, and had the strange and fortunate result of frightening away the glaucous fish.

Tree Belfries

Many of the first Christian church bells were fastened in tall trees that stood near the church, writes Satis N. Coleman in his book, "Bells." Even today, in some villages of Russia and other countries, the bell hangs on the branches of a tall tree in the churchyard. In Iceland the bell usually is placed in the "lych gate," a covered entrance to the graveyard. The tree belfry once was common in Scotland and Ireland.

Already Educated

In one of the schools in the northern part of the city, Belle Ryan, assistant superintendent of schools, was conducting an intelligence test on a group of youngsters.

One little boy, age six, was asked the hypothetical question: "Suppose you left home for school some morning and it would start to rain. What would you do?" Without a moment's hesitation the youngster replied: "I'd call a taxi."—Omaha World-Herald.

Reason Enough

He is a man of means, a well-groomed fellow who has reached what one might call the favorable fifties. He spends quite a lot of his time glancing around at his factories. He lives, however, in the smallest town in which he owns a factory. Recently while he was visiting a rather lace curtain friend of his the friend remarked: "But why do you stay in such a one-horse town?" "Perhaps because I happen to be the horse," he replied modestly.

Get Set

This thing of jumping around from one job to another may make you acquainted with a lot of scenery. But it will never make you acquainted with success. Stick with your job long enough to call it by its first name.—Grit.

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

ANDOVER MASSACHUSETTS

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY
AT THE PRESS BUILDING BY THE ANDOVER PRESS

Entered at Andover Postoffice as Second Class Matter

A Site for a Post Office

This issue of the Townsman carries a communication from "An Old Subscriber," which will be of interest to all readers of these columns. Its object is a worthy one, that of reviving interest in the old-discussed new Post Office for Andover.

"An Old Subscriber" suggests among other things that the Townsman invite the citizens to express their opinions, through its columns, regarding a good location for this building. The Townsman is very glad to print signed communications on any subject interesting to its readers at all times. It is particularly enthusiastic on this subject of a new Post Office, and will welcome any communications that may be received. This is an excellent opportunity for the citizens to express their views on this question, and there is no better time than the present to begin. It is hoped that many of Andover's citizens will send in their opinions, in this way, bringing the subject to a head which should eventually show some definite results.

Boy Scouts Called out to Look for Blueberry Picker

Dr. N. B. Russell, 75-year-old dentist who lives at 54 Milton street, North Andover, went looking for berries Sunday in the wooded section surrounding Haggett's pond, and oversteering his proposed time limit, police and Boy Scouts were called out to search for him. He was found happy and smiling at about 10 o'clock, and the search was over.

The doctor went with his wife by machine to Haggett's pond at 11 o'clock Sunday morning with the purpose of blueberrying. Leaving his wife waiting in the car parked on the side of the road, he entered the fields with a pail for collecting the berries.

As time wore on and his wife waited for him the minutes that passed by slowly began to wear on Mrs. Russell's nerves. Leaving his wife waiting in the car parked on the side of the road, he entered the fields with a pail for collecting the berries.

The doctor went with his wife by machine to Haggett's pond at 11 o'clock Sunday morning with the purpose of blueberrying. Leaving his wife waiting in the car parked on the side of the road, he entered the fields with a pail for collecting the berries.

They started for the berry-field and spread out in pairs so that a large area of the district was covered by the searching parties. They had been looking less than half hour when State Patrolman Alteri and Motorcycle Officer David Gillespie of Andover came upon the doctor as he was returning to his machine with a load of luscious berries. In answer to inquiries by the officers Dr. Russell replied that he had disregarded the hour of the day and time passed without his realizing that it was so late.

At the time that the two officers came upon him, preparations were being made to bring Boy Scouts of Malden who were at Camp Manning to help in the search. About the time that the scouts were preparing to start for Andover, word was received that the doctor had been found.

Dr. Russell is well known as a lover of the outdoors, and is especially known for his prowess with a gun. He has been connected with the Lawrence Fish and Game club for almost half a century, having first taken to shooting when he was eleven years old. He was the president of the first gun club in Lawrence, in the early 80's. He is the owner of a .22 caliber rifle and a .300 Winchester rifle, and he has won many trophies in the annual shooting contest. He also holds the record for breakage, 90 out of a hundred. Dr. Russell makes his home in North Andover and has his office in the Bay State building in Lawrence.

Communication to Playground Parents

There are many fruit trees in the yards of our playground neighbors. I regret to say that some of the children frequenting the playground have thoughtlessly helped themselves to apples belonging to others.

This has been very annoying though great patience has been shown by the owners. The playground leaders are doing all they can to prevent the stealing of fruit, not only to help the neighbors but because they feel children should be taught honesty and respect for other people's property. When a child comes to the playground eating fruit it is sometimes difficult to discover whether the fruit was brought from home or stolen.

Parents can assist in this matter by questioning children who return home eating apples.

Plans for Sunday Vesper Service

The growing attendance at the hymn-singing on the Free Church lawn these summer Sunday nights shows the enjoyment of them. Next Sunday night at seven the orchestra will lead as usual. Robert Deymond will be the soloist. Rev. Frank R. Shipman will conduct the service.

Broken Trolley Wire Endangers Many

The lives of several workmen and a number of bystanders were endangered Tuesday morning when a steam shovel working on North Main street, broke the trolley wire between the old rubber shop and Andover square. Linemen from the Lawrence Gas and Electric company who were working in the vicinity of the accident, were called to the scene and soon had wires in a position of safety. The steam shovel is situated on the right of way of the car lines and traffic has been halted between the rubber shop and the square. The accident happened shortly before 10 o'clock and the linemen were notified by George A. Christie.

Fined For Driving After Revocation

Hoosier Beesonian of West Andover was fined $50 in District court Tuesday morning when he was adjudged guilty of operating an automobile after revocation of his license and Garubed Bagdasian of 393 Essex street Lawrence, was fined $5 for allowing a person to operate an automobile after his license had been suspended. The two men were arrested by the Andover police during a state-wide checkup on July 29. They were represented by Atty. Michael S. O'Brien.

Officer Carl Stevens of the Andover police testified that he questioned the men and learned that Beesonian had his license to operate suspended in May.

Beesonian testified that he was involved in an accident in Lawrence and on May 25 had returned his license to Boston as requested. He stated that the sixty days' period was up so he asked his friend to let him take the car to go to Boston to get his license restored.

Bagdasian testified that he had known Beesonian for nine years and did not know his license had been taken away.

Celebrates 94th Birthday in Stoneham

The many Andover friends of Mrs. Thomas will be glad to see the following from the Stoneham Press of August 2, 1929.

"A beautiful birthday cake, flowers, cards and letters from distant friends combined to make a happy day for Mrs. Charlotte A. Thomas of 8 Pond street on the occasion of her ninety-fourth birthday, Sunday. The beautiful birthday cake was prepared by Mrs. Thomas' neighbors who presented it a token of the esteem in which they hold her." With it went their sincere wishes for many more birthdays. Friends called at the home throughout the day to pay their respects.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas left Wednesday for Europe where they will visit the groom's parents and enjoy an extended trip by motor.

Local Boy Begins Training at Military Academy

West Point, New York, August 9.—Marking the completion of six strenuous weeks of drill on the parade ground at the U. S. Military Academy here, Cadet John D. Armitage, 123 Haverhill street, Andover, Mass., in company with the entire plebe class of 412 cadets will leave here August 19th on a four-day practice march, according to orders just issued by Major General William R. Smith, Superintendent. Full field equipment will be carried by the cadets and a shelter tent camp will be established each night.

The march will take the cadets through the picturesque lake region in the foothills of the Catskill Mountains, south of West Point. About forty miles will be covered with over night stops at Popolopen, Rocky Camp and Round Pond. During the hike Armitage will receive special instruction in march discipline, camp sanitation, making camp and care of the feet. He will also take his turn at kitchen police and guard duty.

Meals will be prepared by regular Army cooks in rolling kitchens, while all drinking water will be purified in a water purification unit. Major T. A. Torry, Assistant Commandant of Cadets, has been designated by General Smith to command the class.

On Armitage's return from the hike, preparations for the opening of the academic year will be started with a series of lectures on methods of study and class room procedure. The new cadets will be divided into classes of twelve men, which will enable instructors to give personal instruction and also insure each cadet reciting in every subject daily.

Varsity and intramural athletics will also start on September 1st and all new cadets will be eligible to try out for the plebe football and soccer teams.

Communication

DEAR EDITOR:

When Congresswoman Rogers visited Andover last week the Townsman stated she was asked if a definite site for the proposed Post Office building were secured would it help matters and she replied in the affirmative.

It seems to the writer that the Townsman would be doing a distinct service to the town if the citizens were asked to express their opinions through its columns regarding the best location for the building. I am told the Government will not pay any large amount for a site but requires a fairly good sized lot. It has been suggested it might be good business for the Town to pay the difference between what the Government is willing to pay and the cost of a suitable lot in event the citizens can unite on a location. Central Street has been suggested. That would be about as bad as where the office would be.

In my judgment it should be on Main Street. The site of the present Town House would be ideal. There are others.

Andover is not far sighted. We must have a Civic Centre. The only locations available will soon be taken by private interests.

If our good friend, the late John N. Cole were alive, I dare say we would now be enjoying a Civic Centre and possibly a new Town House. I am sure that Mr. Cole would not always agree with Mr. Cole. He made mistakes. Many of them. But they were made in trying to do things for the good of Andover.

We, as a Town, have also made many mistakes. Are making them now because of our lack of vision but let us now bestir ourselves as to our Federal building location and a Civic Centre.

Weather Changes

The weather bureau says that day-to-day changes in the weather—one cold, next warm, then perhaps cold again—are mainly due to changes in the direction of the wind, and that in turn to changes in the distribution of air over the surface of the earth. The causes operating and their effects are rather complicated, but go back mainly to circulation between the equatorial and polar regions (caused by the heating of the tropical regions and the cooling of the polar regions) as modified by the effects of the daily rotation of the earth.

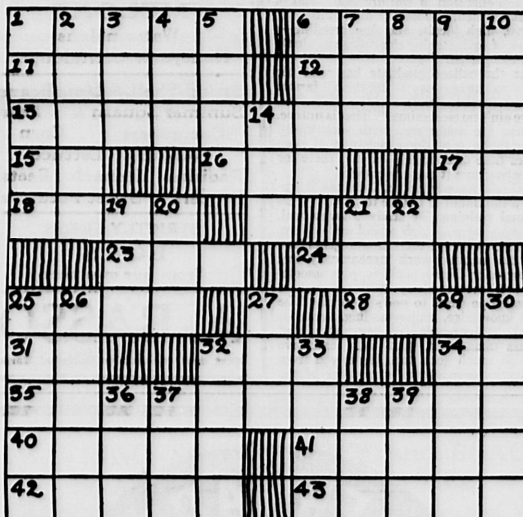

Canadian Metropolis

Years before adventurous white men penetrated inland into America, Indians gave the name "Toronto" to the place where trails and water routes converged at a bay of Lake Ontario's northern shore. Toronto means "place of meeting" in the Indian language, and thanks to the amazing progress of modern transportation it has grown from a tiny settlement where goods were brought for exchange to one of the largest cities in Canada and a great railway center with a population of nearly 700,000.

Interior Department

A grade school class was discussing the various departments of government. The teacher called on a lad who had not been attentive. "James, who is the head of the Interior department?" "I think the stomach," replied the lad.

BABSON SAYS MONEY RATES STILL DETERRENT FACTOR TO SPECULATIVE TRANSACTIONS

Real Estate Market Is Improving and Buying of Homes and Industrial Property Is Still Well Maintained—Credit Stringency Has Not Extended to Real Estate Loans of Legitimate Character

Babson Park, Mass., August 9, 1929. Although credit stringency and high money rates have unquestionably slowed up the speculative building and real estate market, values, on the whole, have been well maintained and the total volume of property transactions is greater than it was at this time last year. The credit stringency has not extended to the real estate loans of legitimate character, such as home building or expansion of industrial plants. A survey recently completed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, shows that in 76 percent of the cities interest rates on mortgage money are the same as last year; in 12 percent mortgage rates are lower; and in 12 percent report an increase. Nearly half of the cities report a surplus of mortgage money; one-third of them say the demand and supply are just about equal; and 21 percent of them say that there is a shortage of money for mortgage purposes. Apparently the boiling stock market and to restrictive measures of the Federal Reserve Board have not caused the crisis in real estate which many had expected.

Anyone who wants to buy or build a home can obtain money at as favorable rates now as he could three years ago. On the other hand, the banks are scrutinizing applications for large speculative enterprises very carefully. Undoubtedly apartment house building in some of our large cities was overdone. Until the demand catches up with the supply a resting period in speculative transactions and new construction is only natural. The principal effect of high money from a building and real estate standpoint has been in connection with the decline in municipal financing. Borrowing by cities, towns, and states has been slowed down by the higher rates which they must pay for money. Also, the dullness in the general bond market and the craze for stocks make the sale of even high-grade municipal issues more difficult. The slackening in public developments and improvements can only be alleviated by an easier trend in the money market. Until credit stringency relaxes, the slowing down in public works will continue to have a retarding influence on real estate expansion and sub-division work.

Rents About the Same as Last Year
The rising trend of rents has been definitely checked. Today rentals in most cities, both for residential and business property are fairly well stabilized at just about the same level as last year. Fifty-six percent of the leading cities say rents for single family houses are the same as in 1928; 17 percent of them say rents are higher; while 27 percent say they are lower. Apartment rents in 65 percent of the cities show no appreciable change from last year; in 18 percent they are higher; and in 17 percent lower. Central business property is renting about the same as in 1928 in 52 percent of the cities; higher in 40 percent; and lower in 8 percent. Well situated business rents seem to be maintained on a higher level than most other classes of property. Overbuilding in a few cities has caused decline in all types of rents, but the situation for the whole country is one of stability at prices slightly below the high peak previously reached.

Suburban Real Estate Most Active

Several years ago I called attention to the great movement toward the suburbs brought about by the automobile and improved rapid transit facilities. This movement is continuing in spite of adverse money conditions. Today the cities and towns under 25,000 inhabitants are the ones that are showing the greatest real estate activity. Fifty-eight percent of these small towns and cities show more property transactions than last year. On the other hand, only 50 percent of the large cities with a population of 500,000 or over, and only 24 percent of the cities with populations of 100,000 to 200,000, show an increase in activity over last year. The cities are rapidly spreading out and the demand for good suburban property is constantly growing. Movement away from congested city districts is an excellent thing both for the public health and social welfare of the country. Incidentally, it opens up new opportunities for the enterprising real estate men and investors who have the vision to look ahead ten or fifteen years and to see the picture which the automobile, the airplane, and other transportation marvels are unfolding.

The Airplane Will Develop New Real Estate Opportunities

As the aviation industry grows and the number of planes in use increases, many seemingly useless and inaccessible places will soon become of great value. More ground space will be required for landing purposes. At present many desirable tracts for this purpose can be purchased for the price of unpaid taxes. Just as roadside property took on more value with the great popularity of the automobile, real estate which can be readily employed as an airport will in the same way jump into value. Also, it must be remembered that adjacent land will take on new values. In the future some airports will be of such magnitude as to resemble railroad terminals. We have seen what the automobile and steam engine have done for real estate. The airplane will also convert many vast and undeveloped sections into profitable airports. Those who own tracts of land or who are considering real estate purchases should consider very seriously whether the property will fit in with airport developments.

The airplane will also popularize many beautiful but inaccessible places for resorts. Our coasts are dotted with beautiful islands at present scarcely inhabited or only partially developed. When commuting distances are cut down to a matter of minutes by the airplane rather than hours by boat, such island property is almost sure to boom. Remote parts and territories of the United States also will be opened up both for travel and settlement. In this connection, Alaska may ultimately become a thickly settled and thriving section of the country. There are many beautiful but isolated sections of Canada which may become thriving summer resorts. Also in Northern Canada are many rich metal deposits merely awaiting an easy way of access. These will be exploited as airplane travel grows. Quick transportation developed by the airplane may bring a revival of the "gold rushes" of earlier history.

Such land booms, however, are not as a rule wise things to invest in. The real opportunities will come through sound development of values in desirable property, made readily available by the new means of transportation. The growth may be slow at first, but ultimately such favorably situated land should prove a highly profitable investment.

Business by the Babson chart now stands at 6 percent above normal compared with just normal a year ago.

American "Penny Press"

The History of American Journalism states that the precursor of the penny press was the Daily Evening Transcript, established in Boston July 24, 1830, by Lynde M. Walter. While this paper was not sold on the streets for one penny, it was quoted at the extremely low rate of $4 per annum. Probably the first daily that was actually sold for one cent was the Cent of Philadelphia, published in the same year as the Daily Evening Transcript in Boston. In New York city the idea was first conceived by Dr. Horatio David Shepard.

Rigid Tests for Drivers

In Berlin candidates for places as bus drivers must pass a series of very rigid tests. When the applicant has complied with all other requirements he is placed at a steering wheel and confronted with a moving picture screen in which appears a procession of busses and other vehicles, a runaway horse, some old ladies scurrying back and forth and an occasional "jay walker." If the candidate avoids all these obstacles satisfactorily he gets the job.

Luck Alone Doesn't Win

Luck may have its bearing, but on the whole luck is about evenly divided for and against a man or his success. Often intelligence can turn luck in one's favor.

In this connection no fewer words were ever written than those of Edward Gibbon when he wrote, "The winds and the waves are always on the side of the ablest navigators."

Luck may bring a young writer to the attention of a publisher, but luck alone could not be responsible for the many successful books of Kipling, Dickens, or Wells—Thrift Magazine

"Custard" Joke Old

Custard, it appears, had its place in comedy as far back as the Middle Ages, for it is related that one of the lords of London's food was bound by his office to perform on lord mayor's day was to leap, clothes and all, into a huge bowl of custard. This was considered funny and pleased the lower class of spectators, who never seemed to tire of its yearly repetition. Shakespeare refers to this performance in "A's Well That Ends Well."—Detroit News.

Subduing the Wild Morning-Glory

The farmer who tries to eradicate field bindweed, or wild morning-glory, will not have an easy task, as this destructive weed is unusually resistant to ordinary means of eradication. However, it can be killed by frequent cutting, by a combination of frequent cutting and the growing of dense shade crops, or by chemicals. Clean cultivation also is effective in killing bindweed, but the work must be done thoroughly and repeated weekly for two or more seasons, to prevent the top growth of the weed. Usually the most practicable method is intensive and a another crop, such as sorghum, alfalfa, or Sudan grass. It is very important to destroy small patches first found in a field, as the weed spreads rapidly. Where damage to the soil is unimportant, small patches can be killed by applying common salt at the rate of nearly one pound to a square foot.

"Inside" Information

Bread for sandwiches should be twenty-four hours old. It should be cut in thin slices, and preferably filled with a chopped filling. If the filling is soft and likely to soak through, butter both sides; otherwise the butter may sometimes be mixed with the filling and the spreading may be done in one operation. Cream the butter until soft enough to spread, but do not melt it as the flavor will be changed. A pair of kitchen shears with sanitary white handles and strong, sharp blades is a useful tool. It can be used for chopping celery, apples and pickles for salad, also chicken and other meats; for cutting the heads and tails from fish; for cutting lettuce for shredded salads, bread for stuffing, marshmallows, dates and nuts, for desserts. Then there are all the ordinary uses for scissors—cut paper for lining cake tins, twine on packages, shelf paper, and many other uses.

LOCAL GOLFERS EXCEL

Dave Hackney and Partner Lead Field in New England P. G. A. Tourney. Bart Hayes and West Finish Well-up

Two local golfers, David D. Hackney representing the Merrimack Valley C. C. and Bart H. Hayes playing for the North Andover Country Club were among the leaders in the amateur pro four-ball tournament Monday over the Andover Country Club course under the auspices of the New England P. G. A.

Dave Hackney was partnered with Eddie Bennett of the Lawrence club and Bart Hayes paired off with Arthur West pro at the North Andover Club. Hackney and Bennett led for low gross of 144 until the last pair reported, Charles MacAndrew and Joe Hern of Laconia, N. H., tying the locals for first prize. For low net there were four ties at 139. Bart Hayes and Arthur West finished two places away tied with Jack Curley and B. Emmerson of Stoney Brae at 141. Ted Turner, pro at the local club and C. D. A. Grasse of Lowell scored 143.

There were few good individual medals. It was a day borrowed from October. The west wind was cutting up capers with steeply banked shots and there was a chill in the air that made a jacket comfortable. John Cowan of Oakley had a brief spasm of good putting and he holed the course in 72 shots for the day's low round, while Willie Ogg of Worcester had double-barrelled rounds of 75 and 76 to be the all-day individual leader, his aggregate of 151 being one stroke under the performance of MacAndrew.

Bert Nicoll of Belmont Spring was third best among the individuals with an aggregate of 153, 75 of which were scored in the morning when he ran a pitch shot into the hole for an eagle duce at the ninth hole. His amateur collaborator, Matt Campbell, also of Belmont Spring, knocked four shots off that 75 and their better-half of 71 had them right up close to the top at the conclusion of the first 18 holes.

Hackney and Bennett were leading the field with a 70, while Nicoll and Campbell with their 71, were deadlocked for second place with MacAndrew and Hern, while Donald Vinton and John English of Plymouth were close behind with 72. Campbell was playing his first 36-hole golf in one day since the Woodland four-ball two years ago when he had Chuck Weathers won the net. He and Nicoll tied for the best net with their 139.

Among the amateurs Chick Grasse of Mt. Pleasant was the best. He was 75 in the morning and 79 in the afternoon. His morning 75 became a betterball of 73 with Teddy Turner's assistance at the third and 13th holes where Chick had sixes, but in the afternoon Turner took his turn at carrying the lead and they were 73 again.

That duce of Nicoll's at the ninth hole in the morning was tinged with luck because his drive was only ordinary. In the afternoon he hit a screamer off the tee. The wind caught it and gave it sufficient help to send it to the edge of the green, whence he took three more to get in. He played better in the afternoon and was two shots worse.

The score made by Hackney and Bennett represented some efficient team play. The pro was 76 on his own ball in the morning and Bennett chipped six shots off the medal. In the afternoon Hackney was 78 and helped Eddie at four holes, so that he was worth just 10 shots all day, which is considerably valuable assistance in four-ball play of this character.

Their cards were:

In 4 3 3 6 5 3 3 4 4—35—70

AFTERNOON
Out 4 3 5 4 3 5 4 4—37
In 4 3 5 5 4 4 4 4—37—74—144

Hern's help to MacAndrew represented eight shots all day, three in the morning and five in the afternoon. Their one bad hole was the third where a six was their best in the morning and a five in the afternoon. MacAndrew slammed a great second shot dead to the flag at the first green in the afternoon, leaving himself no more than an 18-inch putt for a duce, but he must have been thinking about the story that Ben Ames Williams wrote in the Saturday Evening Post about Laconia, because he muffed the putt.

Their all-day cards were:

McDonalds 12—Legion 4

The B. L. McDonald nine of Andover: went on another hitting and run-scoring rampage at the Andover playoff last Friday night, defeating the North Andover Legion Post, 19, by the overwhelming score of 12 to 4, for its sixth straight win. Incidentally, by the victory, the Miners moved just behind the South Lawrence A. A., by the margin of one game.

Three North Andover pitchers were found for a total of 18 solid drives, three of which went for extra bases. Hazen Willette, one of the league's leading pitchers, was found to be soft pickings for the home team and lasted but two and two-thirds innings. During that time he was found for nine safe hits, passed seven and struck out but two. He was relieved on the third inning by Bill Rodgers, who faced the tenth batter of that frame with two out and the bases jammed to capacity. Rodgers worked until the final half of the sixth frame, in which time he was found for seven safe hits and failed to issue a base on balls or make a strikeout.

In the seventh inning, Con Hegarty, Legion catcher, went to the other end of the battery and twirled the final inning. Although found for two hits he did have the satisfaction of striking out Tommy Clarke, the first man to face him. When Hegarty went in to pitch, Cardillo caught and Bill Dwyer went to second, while Murdoch and Jensen changed fields.

Broaca worked six innings for the McDonalds and then gave way to Ted Bacht. For three innings Broaca held the visiting team without a hit or a run out they tallied one in the fourth on two hits. For the next two innings Broaca appeared to let up a bit, having such a fine lead and the Legion secured six more hits and three more runs.

Bacht twirled the final inning and allowed one hit and a free ticket to first, although no more scoring was accomplished by the Legionnaires.

The Miners had a good opportunity to take more runs when in the fourth inning four men singled in successive order, but not a runner crossed the plate, which is quite unusual. Flagg opened with a single to center and continued to second on a steal. Broaca slapped a hit to center but Flagg was thrown out at the plate, Sullivan to Hegarty. Clarke left for first on a steal.

Appeals Fine For Drunken Driving

Irving A. Wright, 30, of Main street, Charlestown, was fined $100 in District court Thursday morning when he was adjudged guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He appealed and was ordered held in bonds of $300 for his appearance at the next session of Superior court. He was also found guilty of drunkenness but the complaint was filed. He was represented by Atty. Thomas A. Lane.

Wright was arrested near the corner of Elm and High streets in Andover on July 29 by Officer Leonard Saunders. It was alleged that he had been driving a truck owned by a baking company. The defence had a large number of witnesses who testified that they had seen the defendant earlier in the day and that he was not under the influence of liquor.

Andover Legion Loses to Amesbury

The Amesbury Tigers defeated the Andover Post, American Legion Junior 9, 6 to 3, in an interesting game played at Amesbury, Friday. The home team collected five of their runs in the third inning which just about defeated the Andover club.

Gill who twirled for the Amesbury team showed fine form and allowed the Andover boys but three hits. Both he and Tommy Low, the Andover pitcher, had six strikeouts. The score:

Moon's Light Believed to Affect Mentality

There seems to be a very generally accepted belief that the moon exerts a very potent influence upon the mentality of some persons. Writing in the British Medical Journal, Dr. E. Gerald Stanley says that the colossal upheaval of the waters of the earth—the tides—suggests terrifying possibilities of the moon's effect on human actions.

Mon in Central Africa declare they have suffered from headaches as a result of moonshine, and some make a practice of wearing a pitch helmet when going out at night.

In the Middle East exposure to the rays of the moon is said to cause nightmare as well as headaches, and in the Far East a morning "thick head" is added to these symptoms. In Burma there is a belief that when the insane suffer from mental storms these correspond to the phases of the moon.

It is suggested that the way things are going now, some bond houses may change the signs on the doors to read "Stock and Bond Brokers," which recalls the story of the man who opened a bucket shop in the West.

"What kind of a sign do you want on your door?" asked the sign painter engaged to do the work.

"Oh, just John Smith, Broker," replied the bucket shopper.

"Why don't you make it 'Banker and Broker'?" suggested the enterprising sign painter.

"How much would it cost?" inquired Smith.

"About $2," replied the painter.

"Go to it," instructed Broker Smith. "Who wouldn't be a banker for $2?"—Wall Street Journal.

Branding Sheep

Sheep are branded with paint and not with hot irons as cattle are. The fleeces grow out so that hot-iron brandings would be covered up. Sheep must be branded every time they are sheared. The branding of sheep is more common in the range countries than in the farm states, as sheep are usually kept under fence on farms, and there is not much need of branding. Special branding paint should be used instead of just any kind of tar or barn paint, so as to reduce to a minimum the trouble of scouring the wool. Manufacturers prefer that the brand be placed on sheep where the wool is of the least value, such as on top of the rump.

Great Snake!

Pudden's spider is descended from spiders which dwell up our way and learnt the trick from the carpet snakes.

Old ma carpet snake stands on her tail straight on end. Her young 'uns climb up the old girl and dispose themselves at intervals in a first-class imitation of a dry shrub. As birds settle on this inviting roost they are affectionately embraced by the wriggler, borne to earth and devoured
